City Recreation Centers Offer Free Summer Activities For Kids

Sizzling Summer Registration Event

CLEVELAND – Tomorrow the Division of Recreation is kicking off its Sizzling Hot Summer registration event from 10:00 am - 5:30 pm. All Cleveland residents are invited to visit neighborhood recreation centers for fun activities and summer program registration, as part of the City's Sizzling Summer Sign Up event on Saturday, April 14, 2012.

This special city-wide event will showcase many of the free summer programs available to Cleveland youth and help residents discover what their neighborhood recreation centers have to offer.

In spite of economic challenges, the City will continue to provide a summer full of organized activities. There is also an opportunity for children 9-13 years old who are Cleveland residents, to register for a free week of over night camping at Camp George Forbes in Highland Hills, Ohio. In addition, families can enjoy roller skating, swimming and spray basin play. Free lunches will also be available to all City youth throughout the summer months.

Saturday's event will showcase all of the City's free recreation offerings, plus many special attractions such as face painting, line dancing, Zumba, dodge ball, 3-on-3 basketball, soccer and more. The activities will vary among recreation centers so residents are encouraged to visit or call the recreation center of their choice for details. For more information about City of Cleveland recreation programs call 664-2561.
